Teaching & research experience

I have been teaching Ottoman History at the Department of History and Archaeology of the University of Crete (Greece) at undergraduate and postgraduate levels since February 1999 and February 2001, respectively. Until November 2001, I taught at the Department on renewable six-month and annual contracts. In November 2001, I was appointed Lecturer in Turkish Studies; in September 2007, I was promoted to Assistant Professor of Ottoman History. I received tenure in February 2011, was appointed Associate Professor in February 2019, and Full Professor in December 2025.

During the spring semester of the academic year 2015-2016 I taught modern Greek and Balkan history at the Department of History of Boğaziçi University in Istanbul, Turkey, following an invitation by the Department and the Alexander S. Onassis Public Benefit Foundation that funded this position.

I have also taught at winter and summer schools at the University of Crete for students from Southwest University and Shaanxi Normal University, China; I have lectured the students about the Ottoman Empire and Venetian and Ottoman Crete or Ottoman Rethymno, and have offered guided tours of Rethymno (23 February 2024, 14 July 2024, 23 July 2024, 17 July 2025, 26 January 2026, 2 February 2026).

I participated in the ‘Winter School: Reading and Analysing Ottoman Manuscript Sources’, held at the Institute for Mediterranean Studies of the Foundation for Research and Technology-Hellas in Rethymno on 17-21 March 2025.

I am affiliated with the Institute for Mediterranean Studies of the Foundation for Research and Technology-Hellas (I.M.S./FO.R.T.H.), Rethymno, Greece. My main research project there, since spring 2001, has been the study of Islamic gravestones from Ottoman Crete, both as objects and through their epitaphs. An online database of more than 300 gravestones from the town of Rethymno is accessible through the webpage of ‘Digital Crete’, a project of the I.M.S./FO.R.T.H. (<https://digitalcrete.ims.forth.gr>). Research on gravestones was then expanded to include Heraklion and Chania, the other major towns of Ottoman Crete. Other research projects that I have run at the I.M.S./FO.R.T.H. as head or co-head of research teams, are: i) ‘Historical and archaeological testimonies about water and its management in Crete during the Venetian and Ottoman periods, with an emphasis on the region of Heraklion’ (<http://waterincrete.ims.forth.gr>, a database of more than 1,000 entries), ii) ‘Social parameters and effects of diseases: a historical approach’ (<https://healthincrete.ims.forth.gr>, a database of more than 800 entries), iii) ‘A historical study of the management of water resources in Crete’ (<http://waterincrete.ims.forth.gr>, an e-catalogue of ca. 80,000 words about water management and waterworks in Venetian and Ottoman Crete), iv) ‘CuRe – Cultures and Remembrances – Virtual Time Travels to the Encounters of People from the 13th to 20th Centuries. The Cretan Experience’ (together with Dr Elias Kolovos); the I.M.S. undertook to reconstruct the route of the Ottoman traveller of the seventeenth century Evliya Çelebi in Crete; deliverables: <https://explore.cure-project.gr/> and an app for mobile phones (project partners: Hamburg University, Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München, FO.R.T.H., NovelTech). Projects (i) and (ii) above were funded by the Programmatic Contract between the General Secretariat for Research and Technology of the Ministry of Education, Research and Religious Affairs of the Hellenic Republic and the Foundation for Research and Technology, Hellas, under the framework of Settlement Agreement between the Hellenic Republic and Siemens (duration: 23/4/2015-10/4/2017, budget: 64,200 euros for [i] and 20,920 euros for [ii] above). Project (iii) above was funded by the Partnership Agreement (PA) 2014-2020, Action ‘Innovative Actions in Environmental Research and Development (PERAN, MIS: 5002358)’ (duration: 8/9/2017-7/9/2019, budget: 65,200 euros). Project (iv) above was funded in the context of the Call ‘Bilateral R&T Cooperation between Greece and Germany’, O.P. ‘Competitiveness, Entrepreneurship and Innovation’ (CuRe, MIS: 5030138, duration: 29/5/2018-28/11/2021, budget for I.M.S.: 86,000 euros). Finally, I have participated in the research team put together by the I.M.S./FO.R.T.H. under the leadership of Dr Marinos Sariyannis about the translation into Greek of Ottoman documents about the island of Hydra in the period before and during the Greek War of Independence (November 2020-April 2021); this project was funded by the Municipality of Hydra.

I served as academic advisor to a research team that carried out the research project ‘Local Elites, Taxation and “Chiftlicisation” in the Ottoman Balkans: The Case of Veroia’ in the context of the Call for EABM34, ‘Support for Researchers with Emphasis on Young Researchers’ of the Greek Ministry of Education, Research and Religious Affairs, ‘Development of Human Resources, Education and Lifelong Learning’, Partnership Agreement (PA) 2014-2020 (MIS: 5006251, duration: 19/6/2018-18/10/2019, budget: 40,600 euros). The project was carried out at the University of Crete.

During 1999-2001, I participated in a project entitled ‘Veroia “Metropolis” of Macedonia: Research, Study and Electronic Recording of the History and Cultural Heritage of the Town from Antiquity to Today’, run by the Hellenic National Research Foundation (Athens). My contribution consisted in collecting and entering bibliographical data about Byzantine and Ottoman Veroia in a database (<http://www.ipet.gr/veroia/>) as well as in compiling texts for a CD-ROM about the history of Veroia.

For a six-month period in 1999, I worked as a Researcher in the Events Archive of the electronic databank of the Foundation of the Hellenic World (Athens). More specifically, I entered data concerning events of the Ottoman period of Anatolia in the databank of the Foundation.

From 2005 to 2009, I was a member of the Management Committee of the European research network COST A36: ‘Tributary Empires Compared: Romans, Mughals and Ottomans in the Pre-Industrial World from Antiquity till the Transition to Modernity’ (<http://tec.saxo.ku.dk/>). The aim of this research network was to examine comparatively pre-industrial empires, and nine international conferences were organised in its context. The project was chaired by Associate Professor Peter Fibiger Bang of the University of Copenhagen. Professor Sir Christopher Bayly of the University of Cambridge was the vice-chairman. It was funded by COST, the European intergovernmental framework for Co-operation in Science and Technology.

I have participated in the advisory boards of two European Research Council (ERC) funded research projects: 1. JaNet: Janissaries in Ottoman Port-Cities: Muslim Financial and Political Networks in the Early Modern Mediterranean (principal investigator: Yannis Spyropoulos, Institute for Mediterranean Studies, Foundation for Research and Technology-Hellas, 2020-2025); 2. STASH: Shadow Trade: Unraveling Maritime Smuggling between the Russian and Ottoman Empires (1853-1914) (principal investigator: Anna Sydorenko, Institute for Mediterranean Studies, Foundation for Research and Technology-Hellas, 2024-2029).

I am trained in Greek and Ottoman palaeography, and have conducted research in the Ottoman Archives of Istanbul, Turkey (Ottoman Archive of the Turkish Presidency), Salonica, Greece (Historical Archives of Macedonia), Veroia, Greece (General State Archives – Imathia Prefecture Archives), Heraklion, Greece (Vikelaia Municipal Library), and Sofia, Bulgaria (Sts Cyril and Methodius National Library). I have also conducted research in the Archive of the Ecumenical Patriarchate of Constantinople in Istanbul, Turkey, and in the National Archives, U.K.
